PRECIOUS METALS COMMENTARY

Gold prices are modestly higher and near the daily highs in late-afternoon U.S. trading Tuesday. Meantime, silver prices are slightly down after hitting a 2.5-year low in morning action. There have been no major business news developments early this week, which is allowing prices to continue to drift sideways to lower. December gold futures were last up $2.00 an ounce at $1,201.80. December Comex silver was last down $0.011 at $14.17 an ounce.

World stock markets were mixed but mostly lower overnight but U.S. stock indexes are higher at midday. Despite some potential storm clouds on the horizon, traders and investors are showing generally upbeat attitudes so far this month. September and October have historically seen some turbulent trading times for stock and financial markets.

World trade matters remain on the front burner of the marketplace this week. Reports said the U.S. and European Union may be getting closer to a trade agreement after recent meetings.

The key outside markets today find the U.S. dollar index slightly up. Meantime, Nymex crude oil prices are sharply higher and trading just above $69.00 a barrel.

Technically, December gold bears have the firm overall near-term technical advantage. Gold bulls' next upside near-term price breakout objective is to produce a close above solid technical resistance at last week's high of $1,220.70. Bears' next near-term downside price breakout objective is pushing prices below solid technical support at the August low of $1,167.10.
