PRECIOUS METALS COMMENTARY

Gold prices are moderately higher in early-afternoon U.S. trading Wednesday. Gold and silver are supported on some buying back of previously sold positions (short covering) by the shorter-term futures traders. A lower U.S. dollar index on this day also supported some buying interest in the precious metals markets. December gold futures were last up $6.10 an ounce at $1,209.00. December Comex silver was last up $0.115 at $14.30 an ounce.

There have been no major news developments to move the markets this week, other than the U.S.-China trade dispute that has been ongoing for months. There continues to be little to sometimes only modest risk aversion in the world marketplace at present, and that continues to limit the upside in the safe-haven gold and silver markets.

The other key outside market today finds Nymex crude oil prices higher and trading just below $71.00 a barrel. However, there is strong chart resistance just overhead for crude that has capped rallies in recent months. Source: Kitco
